THE RAILROADS.

RALEIGH, N. C., January 21.—The people along the line of railroad from Merchant City to Smithville are besieging the legislature for the right by which the road may be extended from Smithville to Hayesville and on through the country of Hamlet, Chatham, Randolph, Edgecombe and Cabarrus to Charlotte. The state owns stock in the road to the amount of $1,300,000, which is absolutely worthless, never having paid a dividend except as a means to continue the road and run it as a political machine.
The legislature is to give the state's stock to any company which will extend the road to Charlotte.
Another is for the state to put on a force of 200 convicts, grade the road, take stock for the surplus money made by the road, other than the cost of the land, and make a mortgage on the same to pay him up.

THE CONSTITUTION,

Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, JANUARY 24, 1885.

PUBLISHER'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

In to-morrow's CONSTITUTION we shall print the first part of a story by Mr. J. C. Harris, entitled

"BLUE DAVE,"

"The Story of a Runaway."

Which is one of the strongest and tenderest stories Mr. Harris has ever written.

The story will be printed in two or three parts, on Sundays. It deals with a runaway negro in the old slave days, and is a companion piece to the inimitable story "Free Joe," which treated of the freedmen of color in the same period.

No one should fail to read this strong and beautiful story. The first part will be printed

In To-Morrow's (Sunday's) Constitution.

INDICATIONS, 1 a. m., for the South Atlantic states: warmer rainy weather, generally followed by fair weather, falling barometer, variable winds, generally southerly.

The historic old bell, whose tones first told the result of the "conspiracy" which led to independence, has, for the first time in its history, passed out of Philadelphia, and is now on its way to New Orleans, where it will tell its story in mute eloquence.

The story of a preacher who passed all his life as a poor man, only to be proven a millionaire after his death, is told elsewhere. The strange part of the story is that the reverend gentleman never felt called upon to pay taxes upon his wealth, but dodged the issue like a typical financier.

Grave fears exist in London that the recent battle between Stewart's forces and the madd's men in the desert was not so favorable to the British as the reports indicated. For some grave reason the special reports of newspaper correspondents have been held back by the military censors.

The recent plenary council of the Catholic church, which was held in Baltimore, among other labors adopted the draft of a letter expressive of his admiration of the conduct of the Catholic prelates in Germany. The letter has already appeared in that country, but the government has prohibited its further circulation.

An interesting scene was witnessed in the two houses of congress yesterday, when the American silk association presented each body with a flag, entirely of American growth and make. The incident serves to show that, with proper encouragement, another great industry may be added to our list, and one which will benefit women and children especially.

The supreme court of Nebraska has just rendered a decision of some interest concerning the relation of public corporations to the people. The privileges of the telephone had been refused an applicant, who at once applied for a mandamus to enforce his rights. The supreme court decides that the telephone company is a public servant, and as such must serve the public without discrimination of person.

WILDCAT BANKS AND WILDCAT ED ITORS.

It is a little curious that Louisville should be the headquarters for newspaper cranks, but so it is. It is true that the newspaper men in Louisville are not cranks, but there is extraordinary competition among them to out-Watterson Watterson. When THE CONSTITUTION, the other day, in the interest of that species of financial relief so necessary to the country, advised the repeal of the statutes taxing all bank circulation other than that of the national banks themselves, it was promptly set upon by the Louisville Commercial, which is supposed to be edited by a financier of great gifts and accomplishments. This able man contended that the proposition of THE CONSTITUTION was in behalf of the establishment of wildcat banks.

This is a tremendous accusation, to be flung at us by so great a man as a Louisville editor, and has the true Wattersonian flavor. Years ago, when our people were disowning and learning the A B C's of business as well as finance, the banking system of the country was very far from what it should be. Each state had its own system, and each system was crude and clumsy, not different in these respects from the other systems. Bank management was crude as well as loose, and the natural result was the wildcat banks and the distress they brought about.

But the country has made great progress in financial knowledge and experience, and we maintain that state banks could be carefully guarded by legislation—a carefully hedged about—as the national banks. We suppose the brilliant disciple of Watterson is indignant because of our suggestion that the national banks should not be allowed to have a practical monopoly of matters and things, for which some scornfully suggests that anybody, or any company of bodies, can have a national bank of their own by complying with the requirements of the law.

This is true just at present, but how long will it be true? Is the national bank system to run on forever? It is likely that the people will continue to pay the national banks a premium to give the country a currency which is no better than the legal tender currency? The national banking system had its uses when the government was compelled to force its bonds on the market, but it tion is, is not the power of the national banks greater than it should be? It is in the power of these banks to disturb the business of the country and to practically control legislation whenever they may be in the mood to do so.

They were in the mood a year or two ago when financial legislation not of their devising was up for discussion in congress. The people have a very lively remembrance of the attitude of the national banks at that time. They sounded the alarm, and proceeded to disturb business to such an extent that they practically bulldozed congress and had their way. Now, we are not opposed to the national banks, nor are we engaged in making any war on them. The system under which they operate is a good one, but it is not perfect and there is no reason why it should be regarded with any more consideration than any other imperfect system. Its imperfection lies in the fact that it has too much power, and it will be a good thing for the country when the legal tender notes issued by the government take the place of national bank notes.

In addition to the legal tender notes we believe that each state and every community should have a local currency suited to its own peculiar needs—this supplementary currency to be as carefully guarded by legislation as possible. The suggestion in regard to wildcat banks is absurd. Wildcat banks were as much of a product of loose legislation as of loose legislation. They bear the same relations to modern finance that speculation bears to honest business methods. The Louisville crank might as well propose to put an end to the production of cotton and wheat because wildcat business men make them the basis of speculation.

Miss Vinton, Parker Stratton, the writer of "The Young Men of Chancery," a exceedingly popular movement in England, has had her head of the Young Men of Chancery, a movement that could be considered as great Britain would be the natural result of such a movement.

Mr. Beringer has three golden-throated canaries in his study. They hang in the sunny bay-window, in gilt cages, covered with rose pink tablanc. Every morning the great preacher feeds them and talks to them, and they sing while he thinks of his Sunday sermons. He says they help him to think, and often get new ideas.

The Philadelphia Press says "they will be visiting Robert Toombs, of Georgia, the next thing." And yet, the probability is that when your Uncle Robert needs a vindication he will put the Blame on notice.

The Illinois legislature appears to be a combination of a Cincinnati beer garden and a colored cake walk.

The newspapers make a great fuss when they will be visiting Robert Toombs, of Georgia, the next thing." And yet, the probability is that when your Uncle Robert needs a vindication he will put the Blame on notice.

JUDGE M'CAY'S CONDITION.

He Remains in the Asylum Voluntarily Until His Health is Restored.

PHILADELPHIA, January 23.—Judge McCay's writ of habeas was withdrawn to-day from the court of common pleas. His counsel explained to Judge Findlater that proceeding had been dropped. He said that the relator was not deprived of his liberty, and that he was now remaining in the insane asylum voluntarily until his health should be restored.

MASON'S MACHINE.

What an Inventor of the New Cotton Picking Machine Says of Its Work.

NEW YORK, January 23.—Charles T. Mason, the inventor of the Mason cotton harvester, is a young man, a native of South Carolina, and has spent most of his life within sight of the cotton fields. He has been working on the cotton harvester for nine years.

In an interview with a reporter of the Tribune, Mr. Mason said:

"The extended use of my machine for the harvesting of cotton will almost effect a revolution in cotton-picking, and it may bring about a considerable change in the price of cotton. It will do the work of thirty or forty men. At present it costs the planter about $9 to pack a bale of cotton; by the use of the harvester a bale can be packed at a cost of $3. It costs nearly $80,000 to run the harvester, but the greater cotton crop of $2, and one can see how great is the aggregate amount saved when the crop is gathered by machinery. None of these harvesters have been manufactured for the market yet. We hope to have a limited number in use next fall. I am making some further improvements in the invention. The machine will be sold for about $100."

"Is your harvester the only machine of the kind in the market?"

"Since 1840 one hundred patents have been given to the inventors of cotton-picking machines. I have never heard of any of these many patents except at the office in Washington, D. C., where the cotton-picking machine is in use. In Texas they have some kind of a rough machine which rakes up the fibre, but it has no discriminating quality, and gathers wood, leaves and dirt, and mixes these foreign matters with the cotton. My harvester is a machine which resembles a planer somewhat, with a large number of slender steel blades, which sweep with teeth which lie below the surface of the cylinder, run over every inch of the cotton plant, and if the bell has opened wide enough to indicate that the plant is ready for picking, the fibre is grasped by the sunken teeth, and all other substances, and passed through the machine, nothing but cotton remains. The harvester is a machine which was invented on Wednesday before Judge Justice, in the district civil court. Two witnesses testified that the first mentioned will not be in Mrs. Gaines' handwriting, and Dr. Holcomb testified that Mrs. Gaines was physically unable to write anything from the 5th to the 8th of January."

"My letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Gaines in the years 1882, 1883 and 1884, were offered in evidence by counsel for Wilder and Christmas, showing that Mrs. Gaines at one time had great confidence in Mrs. Evans, but subsequently held her to be a fraud and an unfeeling and unprincipled woman. Wilder, however, had been Mrs. Gaines' legal adviser, and had advised the above mentioned letters was not of 'Mazepa,' whose scanty attire met the eye of the world."

"There were, however, some few facts said and done which were of a rather coarse nature, and which could have been just as well left out. The company by all odds much better than it ever before."

"It will play again at matinee to day, and again at night. The performances the entire programme will be changed."

ALABAMA LEGISLATURE.

The Railroad and Future Bills Under Consideration.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., January 23.—[Special.]—The Senate and the house discussed the pending railroad legislation all the morning.

Senator Samford, of Opelika, consumed a part of yesterday and this morning in a powerful argument in favor of the proposed legislation, to be followed to-morrow by Senator Denson, of Chambers, advocating the measure.

The audience seemed to enjoy the performances. Probably many were disappointed because the show did not come up to their expectation of being a grand and costly entertainment. The performance was not a bit worse than has been that of many companies which have played here, and which have been held in high esteem by the more refined audiences. It was nothing like as broad as that of 'Mazepa,' whose scanty attire met the eye of the world."

EXCITING SCENES AT A REVIVAL.

Men and Women Fall into a Trance and Relate Their Experiences.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., January 23.—A religious revival in the Methodist church here followed to-morrow by Representative Wiley, of Indiana, conducted by Sister Woodward, an evangelist, culminated last night in fully a score of men and women falling into a trance state at one time. After lying from one to three hours in this state they returned to consciousness, and related their experiences. One young woman said that she had been converted and had been in the house, and commanded them to fall into line and evade the enemy's ranks.

S. W. John, of Seima, spoke at length in the house in favor of the pending bill, opposed subsequently by Mr. Smith, of Indianapolis, who was allowed to speak, in opposition to the measure.

At this all burst into tears, and the general said: "What is the matter with you, my dear friends? Have I alarmed you? Oh, don't cry, good children, we will all meet in heaven."

These were Jackson's last words. A short time after he died peacefully away. He died a Christian and a Presbyterian.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

By the Chicago Constitution.

CHICAGO, January 23.—The wheat market opened McKey for February and steady for May. The feeling was bullish on light receipts here, and a strong market at the seaboard. Liverpool, however, was weaker and 1d per cent lower all round, and Mark Lane was quiet but steady, with 6d per quarter advance for American spring or prompt shipment. No cargo market. The disposition is to continue to build up the market.

It is felt that the large part of the crop surplus has left the farmers' hands and that the visible supply is much less than it seems on account of the deficiency in the present stock of flour as compared with last year. It is thought, too, that the cold weather cannot fail to injure the crop to a greater or less extent, and that the present price of wheat will soon fall in a month to come. But abroad the feeling is undoubtedly easier. The latest sales of the day were nearly at outside figures.

Corn was firmer and higher to-day under light receipts and active shipping demand here and at seaboard. Liverpool was steady for corn, but Mark Lane was 8d per quarter lower for American mixed. January steer corn was quoted at 2d and February steamer 22d. Receipts here today were 21 bushels, No. 2, Liverpool, 1d 1/2d higher and advanced 1d. While May opened steadily and advanced 3d. In spite of all bear predictions and movements, and enormous official estimates of the crop, the naked facts are that corn is strong and shippers can hardly get what they want to fill their orders. Cash corn in stock is very slow but sample corn on track is lively enough.

The strength in oats continues and increases.

March opened 5d higher this morning, while

May advanced 3d and both options held their ground.

May pork opened 8d higher at $12 40 and sold up to $12 40 and down a point.

March lard opened 6d and advanced to 6d 3/4.

Delayed Markets.

MANCHESTER, January 23.—The Guardian, in its commercial article says: "The market is flat and buyers purchase sparingly. Sellers are content to let at current prices. Manchester, however, is the only market which is somewhat inactive, though not very inactive."

NEW YORK, January 23.—The New York

Commercial Journal says: "There was a run on the New Haven savings bank this afternoon, and the excitement is increasing.

The bank officers assert that the bank is all right, and the run was caused by some personal joke about the bank's condition.

A Curious Story Which Comes Out After His Death.

"Orpheus and Eurydice" at DeGives's Opera House Last Night.

The new Rentz-Santley Novelty and Burlesque company played last night at DeGives's to a good audience, the inactivity of the weather preventing as large a number from attending as might have been expected. Among those present were men of almost all the varied professions with which Atlanta is blessed. Merchants, bankers, politicians and clergymen contributed their admission fees into the same box.

Lawyers were there in abundance. Both the old and the young were represented, and the various benevolent organizations of the city sent a full quota of their members.

A large policeman was there by a large majority. There were many buttons on the policeman's coat, and each one had his name on it.

He was there to see his wife, who had come to town to see him. She had come to town to see him, and he had come to town to see her. They had been married for nine years, and he had been a policeman for nine years, and she had been a widow for nine years.

Who Still Doubt

If so they will find in our office many such letters as the following, but none that are entitled to more consideration:

With my experience I pronounce

Brewer's Lung Restorer

the best lung remedy made.

For my brothers and sisters had died with consumption, and about three years ago I became so exhausted by a long continued cough, accompanied with low fever and night sweats, that I could barely get about and my friends gave up all hope. I coughed so incessantly that I could not sleep at all. After trying several lung medicines I began the use of

and was greatly benefited by the first bottle, gaining flesh and strength and resuming work. I continued to take it and am astound now as I ever was, rarely ever cough nor do I suffer with my lungs any more than if they never had affected.

I am never without a bottle of it in my house. During the winter I give it to my little children, even a little follow three years old, for anything like common colds, or when they show any evidence of croup and always with the most satisfactory results. Very truly,
